Judy currently leads the development of the Civic Ventures Next Chapter Initiative. She has worked in the field of aging and lifelong learning for more than 25 years. Prior to joining Civic Ventures in 2001, Judy was associated with Elderhostel for 18 years where she served as Vice President for U.S. Programs and was involved in the development of Elderhostel's Service Learning programs and the Elderhostel Institute Network, a membership organization of Lifelong Learning Institutes.

She began her career in the field of continuing education where she was involved in the early development of external degrees and credit for prior learning at colleges in Oregon and Colorado. Ms. Goggin speaks, conducts workshops for national organizations, and writes for publications in the areas of aging, higher education, civic engagement, and encore careers.

She serves in an advisory capacity for several national organizations and initiatives including AARP, The American Society on Aging, The National Council on the Aging, The Transition Network and The American Libraries Council.
